It is said that Pierpont Morgan smokes the costliest cigars in the United States. He pays an expert to watch the cutting and curing of the tobacco in Cuba, and its forwarding to Havana, where another expert cigarmaker is employed to make them according to order and regardless of expense. This makes Mr. Morgan's smokes cost him $1.25 each. Queen Victoria's cigars (although the old lady doesn't smoke) cost her about $1.50 a piece, but she isn't as sharp a trader as Pierpont.

The Government life-saving service has been in existence twenty-six years. In that time according to official reports it has saved 72,000 lives, $146,500,000 worth of property and given aid in 8,982 marine disasters. And yet this is one of the most parsimoniously compensated services connected with the Government.

The police board of St. Joseph, Mo., have bounced all the fat men from the police force, because they do not believe fat policemen are the fellows to catch lean sprinters when they are wanted. Perhaps some of the board are interested in some anti-fat stuff and hence the leaning towards lean policemen.

The cotton spinners of the Manchester district in England have been notified that there will be a 5 per cent. cut in wages, to go into effect Dec. 1st. They are kicking against it and it is said that 200,000 of them will go on a strike unless some satisfactory arrangement be made in the meantime.

The New York World calls attention to the fact that there were 70,000 voters registered in that city who did not vote at the last election. These must have been some of the fellows who signed the petition asking Seth Low to run for Mayor and then fluked.

Mr. Campbell and the Seashore Hotel.

Mr. George Campbell, of Charlotte, proprietor of the Seashore Hotel, arrived yesterday. In the afternoon he went down to Wrightsville beach to look after the hotel property. He found everything in good shape, and continues so well pleased with the advantages for a hotel that are to be had on the beach that he has decided to make many improvements. More rooms will be added to the hotel, a large pavilion and bath houses will be built, and next season will find the Seashore one of the best equipped hotels on the coast.

Rough Treatment of Carts.

The market carts which at 11.30 o'clock Saturday nights are drawn up in a line at the wharf back of the market house fared badly Saturday night. One of them, belonging to John Murphy, colored, was found with one wheel completely smashed; the body of another was taken from the wheels and thrown with the wheels into the river; and there were signs of the same experiment being tried on another belonging to Mr. William Saeeden. There was no clue to the offenders.

Funeral of the Late Mrs. A. E. McLauchlin.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Annette E. McLauchlin, who died Saturday evening at her home in this city near Second and Castle streets, was conducted Sunday afternoon at 3 p. m., from the residence. Rev. W. L. Cuninggim, pastor of Fifth Street M. E. church, officiated, and the last sad rites were witnessed by a number of sorrowing friends and relatives.

Turpentine Still and Rosin Burned.

At 4.30 o'clock Saturday morning last the turpentine still of Messrs. A. A. Clark & Co., Rosindale, was burned, together with 400 barrels of rosin. The loss was $540, with little if any insurance. Mr. A. A. Clark, in endeavoring to save some of the rosin, had his hands painfully burned. He succeeded in saving only eighteen or twenty barrels. Origin of the fire was not known.

OPERA HOUSE

The Minstrels To-night—McFee's Matrimonial Bureau To-morrow Evening.

Richard & Pringle's famous Georgias, combined with Rusco & Holland's Operatic Minstrels, will appear at the Opera House to-night, and the success they made in this city last season will alone assure a large house. The minstrels include forty stars, headed by Billy Kersands, and two bands of music. Everything in the show fits its place to precision, and the entire programme is connected in such a manner that from the time the curtain rises until it descends the last time, there is always plenty of fun. For this performance the entire lower floor of the Opera House has been reserved for white people. Seats now on sale at Gerken's. The minstrels parade at 11.30 o'clock this morning.

The attraction to-morrow evening will be "McFee's Matrimonial Bureau," and the name implies that fun will be never-ceasing during the action of the play. The piece is said to be a rip-roaring, fun producing, Irish farce, brim full of witty lines, funny situations, genuine Irish wit and humor, pretty girls, dainty dancers, sweet singers, up to date comedians, refined specialities, brilliant music, and all that goes to produce clean, mirthful, wholesome fun. The author's main desire seems to have been to ridicule the desire of American heiresses to marry titles, using "McFee," a thoroughly up-to date son of the Emerald Isle, as a hinge upon which to hang the ridiculously funny plot, which keeps the audience in an uproar of mirth and merriment for three hours.

Sale of seats commences this morning at Gerken's.

AT FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

Rev. Charles E. Taylor, D.D., Preached an Able Sermon Sunday Last.

Rev. Dr. Charles E. Taylor, President of Wake Forest College, preached an able sermon Sunday morning at the First Baptist church. After the sermon he took occasion to say a few words about Wake Forest College, which he spoke of as in a measure belonging to the Baptists of Wilmington, whom he invited to come up and inspect their property, suggesting that a Sunday school excursion to Wake Forest would prove most enjoyable and assuring those who should go a warm welcome. He stated that there were 225 students at Wake Forest and that there was never a time when the college was giving better or more thorough instruction, or when the students were more enthusiastic in the pursuit of learning.

The suggestion about a Sunday school excursion to Wake Forest was favorably received and referred to at the meeting of the Sunday school in the afternoon as being quite practicable.

Maj. Jas. C. Mann—Died in Denver, Colorado.

News has reached here of the death in Denver, Colorado, of Major James C. Mann, who lived in Wilmington for several years and was well known to many here.

Major Mann was born in New York State and served in the Northern army during the war, winning the rank of major before its close. After the war he was for a year or two quartermaster of the Freedmen's Bureau here. He served one term, if not longer, as clerk of the Superior Court, and was owner and manager of a saw mill for some time. He was also editor of the Post.

Leaving here about twenty-five years ago he went to San Francisco to live, finally settling in Denver. He was married twice, his second wife preceding him to the grave a year or two ago.

Dr. Strange Gives His Reasons.

As previously announced in the STAR, Rev. Dr. Robert Strange, rector of St. James' Episcopal church, has decided not to accept a call tendered him by Christ's church, Norfolk. Sunday morning, after the regular service had been concluded, Dr. Strange spoke briefly and feelingly about the motives that had actuated him in this step. He stated that for a time he had about made up his mind to accept the call from the Norfolk church, but on his return to Wilmington and on his finding out how sincerely his people wished him to remain with them and how their wishes were reinforced by those of the community at large, he could not find it in his heart to leave and had therefore decided after long and carefully debating the question to cast his lot with St. James' church.

A. C. L. Employes.

Mr. W. A. Weeks has accepted the position of chief clerk in the purchasing agent's department of the Atlantic Coast Line. Mr. Weeks is a native of Newbern, and his friends in that place and in this city, of which he has many, will learn of this well deserved promotion with pleasure. For some time previous to his acceptance of this place, Mr. Weeks was chief clerk on the Atlantic Coast Line supply train. Mr. E. C. Craft, who so capably filled the position now held by Mr. Weeks, has accepted employment in a responsible capacity with the hardware establishment of Mr. J. W. Murchison.

Mr. Will. Herring, one of Tomahawk's popular young townsmen, has accepted a position in the Traffic Department of the Atlantic Coast Line.

Myrtledene Gives Bond and Clears.

The British steamship Myrtledene cleared from this port Saturday night for New York. Her indebtedness to the Cape Fear Towing and Transportation Company, whose tugs pulled her off the shoals October 23d was temporarily settled by a bond filed in the United States District Court in the sum of $10,000.

FUNERAL OF GEO. W. CARTER

Conducted at 3 p. m. Yesterday—Representatives of Four Fraternal Orders Participated in the Services at the Grave.

Mr. Geo. W. Carter, who died early Sunday morning at his home, 218 Castle street, had been for several years an employe of the Wilmington Gas Light Company. He moved to this city about eleven years ago from Camden, New Jersey. He is survived by a sorrowing wife and child. The deceased was a well known lodge man and the large numbers of representatives of the orders to which he belonged who attended the funeral showed plainly in what esteem he was held.

The funeral was conducted yesterday at 3 p. m. Wilmington Lodge No. 189, Improved Order of Odd Fellows, marched from their hall on Third street to the Red Men's hall on Front street, where they were joined by Stonewall Lodge No. 1, Knights of Pythias, Concordia Castle No. 1, Knights of the Golden Eagle, and Eyota Tribe No. 5, Improved Order of Red Men. All marched then to the residence, and with the friends and family of the deceased, followed the remains to Fifth Street M. E. Church. The services were conducted by the pastor, Rev. W. L. Cuninggim, and the hymns rendered were "Nearer My God to Thee" and "Jesus, Lover of My Soul."

The interment was made at Oakdale cemetery. The burial ceremony of Eyota Tribe I. O. R. M. was conducted by S. J. Sternberger, Sachem, and Col. Walker Taylor, Prelate; that of Wilmington Lodge I. O. O. F. by W. C. Smith, Noble Grand, and J. M. McGowan, Chaplain, assisted by Rev. W. L Cuninggim; Concordia Castle K. of G. E., by Mr. Isaac Northrop; Stonewall Castle K. of P., by J. F. Littleton, Prelate. The floral designs sent by the secret orders were very beautiful.

The pall-bearers, who were chosen from the orders named above, were: Honorary, Messrs: R. J. Jones and Isaac Northrop; active, Col. Walker Taylor, D. D. Cameron, S. J. Sternberger, W. H. Howell, Wm. Ulrich and R. H. Northrop.

CHRYSANTHEMUM SHOW.

Committees Make Gratifying Reports—The Display Will Eclipse That of Last Year.

There is no doubt that the Chrysanthemum Show which will be given in the parlors of the Y. M. C. A. on to morrow and Thursday evenings will be a grand artistic success, and it only remains for the public of this city, who ever stand ready to aid a worthy charity, to make it a financial success. The proceeds derived from these entertainments will be voted to a noble institution—the Orphan Asylum at Oxford—and will be given as a Thanksgiving donation from the Masons of this city.

The different committees who have the show in charge met yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Y. M. C. A and each committee made a most flattering report. Mrs. M. S. Willard, chairman of the executive committee, presided, with Mr. C. C. Brown secretary.

The display of chrysanthemums and flowers will eclipse the display made last year, which was magnificent and much admired. During each evening of the exhibition a select programme of music, etc., participated in by some of Wilmington's finest talent, will be rendered in the large auditorium, but no extra fee will be charged. Places in the parlors for the display of different exhibits have been allotted.

The Henry Christian Arrived in Port Sunday Evening.

The Navassa Guano Company's new tug, the Henry Christian, arrived in port at 6 p. m. Sunday. She was built in Philadelphia two years ago. Her dimensions are as follows: 64 feet in length, 7 feet in the hold and 15 feet in beam. The Christian is therefore considerably larger than the Navassa, destroyed by fire some time since. The new tug is in command of Capt. Thomas Taylor, with Mr. G. W. Grimstead as engineer. Capt. Taylor informed the STAR yesterday that at no time was the boat in danger and that the reason for awhile no news was received here about her was that she was weather-bound at Bogue Inlet where there was no way of sending information to the authorities here.

Some of the officials of the company on yesterday afternoon made a trial trip up to the works on the new boat. The tug Imperial has been in use since the burning of the Navasa.

In addition to the captain and the engineer there were on board the Christian during her long voyage from Richmond to Wilmington coast pilot, Capt. James H. Williams; chief engineer, B. W. Newkirk; mate, Robert Williams; cook, Charles Murray, colored.

L'Arioso German Club.

L'Arioso German Club have issued invitations to attend their series of germans for the season 1897-'98, to be given on the second Wednesday evening in each month. Of the club, Mr. R. Beverley Mason is president, Mr. E. Keith Calder vice president, Mr. John VanB. Metts secretary and treasurer, and Messrs. Frank H. Stedman, Thomas W. Davis, Charles C. Chadbourn, Warren L. Johnson, R. Beverley Mason, E. Keith Calder and John VanB. Metts, governing board.

The November german of the club will be given on the evening of the 18th inst., instead of on the 10th.

Concert Friday Evening.

Arrangements are fast going on for the concert to be given in the auditorium of the Y. M. C. A. Friday evening for the benefit of the Catherine Kennedy Home, and a large audience will no doubt be present to enjoy a rare performance of music and other features, and to feel that they are aiding a most worthy institution. The admission will be twenty-five cents.

WILMINGTON NAVAL RESERVES.

The Division Complimented by Lieutenant Commander Kimball, Commanding the Torpedo Boat Flotilla.

U. S. T. B. DUPONT,
WILMINGTON, N. C., Nov. 5th, 1897.

To Commander, Geo. L. Morton, N. C. N. B., Wilmington, N. C.

SIR:—Replying to your kind letter of the 4th inst.:

Please accept my sympathy with you in your physical suffering, and my regrets that this caused me to lose the pleasure of your personal acquaintance.

The appreciative thanks of the officers of the flotilla and of myself are tendered you for your courtesy in inviting us to the Cape Fear Club, and for other services offered.

One of the chief objects of the visit of the flotilla to Wilmington was to put the boats at your disposition for such purposes of instruction to your command as you might decide upon, and to offer to take the command to sea for a short run, in case you saw fit to order such.

Your second in command informed me that the proposed run was not practicable, owing to the business engagements of the men, but that he would avail himself of the flotilla for instructional purposes, and accordingly marched the corps aboard at 8.30 p. m. to-day.

The men were instructed in squads, in the general arrangements of this boat, in the use and adjustment of torpedoes, and in the mechanisms and method of using the rapid fire guns, and left the boat at 10 p. m.

To the full report which will be made you by your executive officer, I would like to add that I was strongly impressed with the alertness and interest shown by the corps, and its ready grasp of detail in the short time available for instruction.

Allow me to congratulate you upon you command, and through you to make to the officers and men of the Wilmington Naval Division the heartfelt acknowledgments of the officers and men of the flotilla for the many courtesies extended and received.

Very respectfully,
[Signed] W. W. KIMBALL,
Lieut. Com'nd'r, U. S. Navy,
Com. Atlantic T. B. Flotilla.

Foot Ball Game With Greensboro.

All lovers of the greatest of American sports—"foot ball"—will have an opportunity of seeing one of the best games ever played in Wilmington, when our team, eleven stalwart youths, will line up against a corresponding number from Greensboro, and the gridiron at Hilton, which has not seen much service lately, will be the scene of a spirited contest.

The Greensboro team is composed of a very gentlemanly and sturdy set of men, and, although one of the best in the State they will have to play hard to vanquish our boys, who are determined to win this game.

The practice last night was the most successful yet had and the manager is very anxious for all the men to be out every night this week, as there is always more to learn.

The ladies are especially welcome at these practices, as is always the case, for the boys in their presence put forth all their efforts to play their best.

Harmony Circle—A Whist Tournament.

Harmony Circle gave a whist tournament last night in their elegantly equipped apartment, and the event was much enjoyed by many young ladies and gentlemen. Upon the conclusion of the tournament refreshments were served.

The winners in the tournament were as follows: Ladies—First prize, Mrs. L. Simon; second prize, Mrs. J. Kahn; third prize, Mrs. N. Jacobi; consultation prize, Miss Lillie Taylor. Gentlemen—First prize, Mr. Sam. Bear, Jr.; second prize, Mr. Ike Bear; third prize, Mr. Albert Solomon; consultation prize, Mr. Joe Kahn.

Of this delightful affair Mrs. I. Greenwald, Mrs. J. M. Solky, Mrs. S. Schloss and Mrs. S. Mendelsohn had charge.

AFFRAY ON FRONT STREET.

Two Negro Men in a Fight—One of the Combatants Seriously Cut With a Knife.

At the corner of Front and Princess streets this morning at 12 30 o'clock John Faircloth, colored, cut Walter Banks, colored, severely with a knife, stabbing him several times in the left side, once in the left arm and once over the left eye. Directly after the cutting Faircloth ran up Front street and made his escape, and Banks with a companion also went off, and all trace of him was lost until an hour and a half afterwards, when Policeman Orr found Banks on Front street, between Market and Dock, coming from Dr. Wright Hall's office, where he had his wounds dressed. Policeman Orr sent Banks to the City Hall, where he stated to a STAR reporter that he (Banks) had loaned Faircloth twenty-five cents, and a companion, "Chucky" Sampson, thirty cents; that Faircloth got mad because he had not loaned him as much money as he loaned Sampson; that he and Faircloth got into a dispute and Faircloth then stabbed him severely (as told above.)

Quarantine Matters.

Captain of police Robert Green left yesterday morning on the 9.35 Atlantic Coast Line train for South Rocky Mount, at which place this morning he will board the 9.30 o'clock incoming train and inspect the Richard and Pringle's Georgia Minstrels before they will be allowed to pass through the quarantine lines and come to the city.

TUESDAY MORNING, Nov. 9, 1897

A FRESH IMPETUS.

There isn't a gold organ in the country that we know anything about that doesn't concede that the recent election gave a "fresh impetus to Bryanism," as they call it, which means a fresh impetus to Democracy. The Charleston News and Courier quotes the New York Post, another gold organ, which is very much worried at the result and troubled at the outlook, as follows:

"What can be done to check the onset of '16 to 1?' The only thing possible is to take some irrevocable step in the way of currency reform and the establishment of the gold standard—some step which shall remove that issue from politics or greatly diminish its force. One such step would be the refunding of the national debt in a gold bond at a lower rate of interest, as Secretary Gage desires; but with the present composition of the Senate it is hardly possible to effect that. Another would be such amendment of the National Banking Act as would make possible and safe the issue of bank notes against the general assets of the banks, instead of requiring bond security."

The Post is an alleged American newspaper, published in New York on the English plan, that is it is an organ and champion of the monetary ideas that emanate from Lombard street. It seems to suffer from a poverty of suggestions as to how "to check the ouset of 16 to 1," for it has only two, one of which it admits to be practically impossible, and the other is in about the same category. Neither of them could be put through either House of Congress, much less both. The Congress of the United States will not convert the outstanding bonds into gold bonds, even with the temptation of saving some millions of dollars in interest.

The News and Courier, which isn't yet reconciled to "Bryanism," thus follows up its quotation from the Post:

"There is nobody to blame for the present condition of things but President McKinley and his party and the interests which they represent. Bad as "Bryanism" is, disastrous as the adoption of the silver standard would be to the business and commercial welfare of the country, they would not be worse than the prevailing conditions which are the direct and natural result of the special legislation in behalf of selected industries and localities which have distinguished Republican Administrations. The most important and really decisive issue in the (Presidential) campaign was the preservation of the gold standard. The fight was won on that issue. What has been done to fulfil that promise?" Nothing. President McKinley does not know what to do. He has no policy to propose, no suggestions to make, no means of carrying out the distinct and positive campaign pledges of his party; and Mr. McKinley's Congress has dodged the issue and sought to evade the responsibility resting upon it. The Secretary of the Treasury has proposed a plan which would afford some relief to the country, but it is certain that his plan will not be passed by Congress. The party has staked its life and the life of the country on Protection, and the country has condemned it. The swindling Dingley tariff bill will defeat the party at the next election and the next.

"Financial reform will be the diciding issue in the next Presidential campaign, and the star of Mr. Bryan is in the ascendant; not because Mr. Bryan's way is the right way or the best way, but because the people of the United States will resort to revolutionary measures rather than submit to the further control of the Government in the interest of the classes. Thousands of Democrats voted against the Chicago candidate and the Chicago platform last year because they hoped, almost against hope, for relief by more orderly and conservative methods; but the work of the McKinley Administration so far shows how sadly their confidence was misplaced. They have not changed their views as to the revolutionary tendencies of the Bryan party, they would welcome any policy which would maintain the credit of the nation while affording financial relief to the people, but they do not look for succor from the party in power. It has one idea of Government—the use of the taxing power in behalf of favored interests. It has one financial policy—the policy of controlling the currency in the interest of the money centres. Such a party with such aims and purposes cannot be trusted with the administration of the affairs of the Government. Bryanism is bad, very bad; but McKinleyism is worse."

Our contemporary, like nearly all the gold organs, is dissatisfied with the McKinley administration because in return for the support they gave McKinley the Republican party policy-shapers didn't give the tariff a back seat and at once set themselves to work to devise some monetary system satisfactory to the gold Democrats; but they have no just cause for feeling disappointed and for throwing stones at the administration, which was under no obligations whatever to them, not even for the so called Democratic votes which were cast for McKinley, for they admitted when they cast their votes that it was a pretty ugly dose, and simply a choice between what they considered two evils. They voted for what they were pleased to call the lesser of the two, not because they liked it, but because they thought that was the only way to defeat Bryan. It was to defeat Bryan rather than elect McKinley that they voted for McKinley, and surely this relieves him from feeling under any obligations to them.

But they are doing the administration and the Republican party injustice and misrepresenting it when they say that the main issue of the campaign was the preservation of the gold standard. That was the issue with the gold Democrats, the 134,000 who voted for Palmer and Buckner, but it was not the issue upon which the Republican party fought. The money question came in as an eleventh hour consideration with them, and then it was as a dodge to catch the votes of the Democrats who were following Cleveland, Carlisle, Morton and that little man Eckels. Mark Hanna made the issue when with Protection written at the top of his programme he drummed up the manufacturers, raised his big fund and played McKinley for the nomination for the Presidency and won. The platform manipulators had hard work to persuade Mark Hanna to let the money question figure in their platform at all, and when it did was a compromise and leaned more towards bimetallism than towards gold.

Like shrewd and unscrupulous politicians they played the "sound money" card where the high tariff business was not popular, and the high tariff where people were more interested in that than in the gold standard. They played both as their judgment as politicians suggested, but protection was the original issue, for it was that which brought Hanna to the front as the machine manager and that which nominated McKinley. If the gold standard had been the issue McKinley never would have been nominated, for his record as a silver man was against him. Why, then, censure the Republican statesmen for not changing their programme and for not doing something they never pledged themselves to do and for doing that which they started out to do and openly proclaimed they were going to do if elected?

The gold Democrats who voted for McKinley have no right to complain, for they knew when they voted for him that they were voting for the ideal high protectionist, who in his front porch speeches put the mills before the mints every time; and the gold Democrats who voted for the venerable decoys have no right to complain either, for they knew in playing that ridiculous burlesque that they were contributing to the election of McKinley and putting Mark Hanna at the front as the trusted counsellor of McKinley, practically making him President, as the distinguished Republican—Conger—of Ohio declares. It is late in the day and puerile for them to be complaining at the inevitable consequence of their own deliberate action, when in preference to standing by their own party and supporting its candidates they bolted their party and voted against its candidates because they could not swallow its declarations on the money question, and voted for a party which was pledged to a policy against which they had done battle time and again, which was then and is now nauseating to them. They knew the Republican party then quite as well as they know it now, and it is the sheerest folly for them to pretend to be disappointed at its course or to have any just grounds for grievance against it. It made no pledges to them that it has violated, but did just what it started out to do on the tariff question and what they had every reason to believe it would do. The result is they have got the high tariff, which they didn't want, haven't got the "currency reform" which they did want, and "Bryanism" is in the ascendancy, which they didn't want, either.

MINOR MENTION.

When the Bank of England wants to prevent gold from being drawn from its vaults it raises the rates of discount and raises on the price of bar gold and thus stops the draw, as it has done frequently, and recently when gold was being drawn to pay for wheat bought from this country. In commenting upon this the New York Times, gold organ, says:

"Our banking system, as has been often demonstrated to our great cost, is wholly inadequate to deal with a similar condition. When anybody wants gold from this side, an agent is merely sent to the United States Treasury with greenbacks to exchange for it, and the Treasury, whatever may be its straits or those of the country, has no alternative but to make the exchange. It has some of the fixed functions but none of the important optional powers or defensive safeguards of a bank. It can raise neither the price of its gold nor the discount rate. It must furnish gold at a uniform price practically fixed by law or dishonor its notes and convulse the country with panic.

"It is too much to hope that this striking object lesson will make any impression on most of our law-makers but it should help open the eyes of the people to the imperative need of reforming our banking and currency laws."

There is no doubt, whatever, that our banking system is defective, but it is taking undue liberty with the facts in the case to assert that the United States Treasury has no "optional powers" to protect itself. It has optional powers but it does not exercise them. It has the option under the law to redeem Government obligations—greenbacks and others—in "coin," but it has transferred to the obligation holder the option vested by law in it and permits him to say what kiad of coin he will have, knowing full well that he will say gold, the kind he came for. If this option had not been transferred there would never have been any danger of injuring the credit of the Government by offering "coin," for there would have been no runs on the Treasury for gold.

We referred a few days ago to an address delivered by Mr. T. C Search at the meeting of the New England Cotton Manufacturers' Association in Philadelphia, in which he called attention to the small amount of cotton manufactures exported by this country compared with the exports by England, Germany and France, to illustrate which he presented the following figures:

Great Britain (1894)	$383,891,000
Germany (1895)	47,749,000
France (1895)	28,757,000
United States (1896)	19,840,000
Total	$498,670,000

One of the remarkable things in this connection is that while England manufactures 77 per cent. of all the cotton fabrics exported by these four countries, she does not raise a pound of cotton, while neither Germany nor France raises a pound of cotton, although they export over $76,000,000 worth of cotton fabrics, while the United States with their little 5 per cent. of exports raise over half the cotton grown in the world. There are reasons for this, of course, but among these reasons is not a lack of enterprise or energy. They are mainly found in the Governmental policies which handicap our manufacturers in competing with foreign rivals and in establishing trade in foreign countries. If it were not for this American manufacturers could control the cotton manufacturing of the world, as the American cotton grower could control the cotton supply of the world, for while we now grow half of the cotton of the world we could, according to Statistician Mulhall, double or treble our crops if we wished to do so.

BOOK NOTICES.

The literary reader will find a fine list of contents in The Bookman, for November, which presents a class of matter not found to the same extent in other periodicals. Published by Dodd, Mead & Co., 5.h avenue and 21st street, New York.

The ladies will be interested in the November number of Godey's Magazine, not only on account of the domestic, fashion and other departments which they find so useful, but on account of the entertaining list of miscellaneous reading presented. Published by The Godey Company 53 Park Place, New York.

The metaphysical reader and free thinker will be interested in the articles presented by the November number of Intelligence, which discuss scientific, philosophical, psychic and occult subjects. Published by The Metaphysical Publishing Company, 508 Fifth avenue, New York.

The Century Magazine, handsomely illustrated as usual, presents a fine and varied list of contents for November. The leading papers are "Andree's Flight Into the Uaknown," "An Interview with the Sultan of Turkey," "Good Americans," and a "New Serial Poem," by James Whitcomb Riley. Published by the Century Company, Union Square, New York.

CURRENT COMMENT

—The English spinners seem determined to cut the wages of their operatives, and are confronted with a gigantic strike. This will not mean higher cotton.—Augusta Chronicle, Dem.

—According to accounts, Lord Salisbury has been making inquiries regarding the seal trade in London, and the possibility of an early extinction of the herds. Perhaps he is "hedging" for a graceful acquiescence in the Washington tripartite agreement.—Baltimore Herald, Dem.

—Nathan Straus says he has never come in contact with a man more anxious to do right than Richard Croker, and Hugh McLaughin thinks David B. Hill "is among the ablest men in the United States today." If anybody has a good word to say for Platt, now is the time to speak up.—Philadelphia Ledger, Ind.

—The action of five Powers of the Latin Union, which on the initiative of Switzerland have signed a convention to increase the number of small silver coins by a franc per head of their population, using the existing five-franc pieces to supply the necessary silver, involves, of course, no enlargement of the market for bullion; yet it gives promise of contribution to the popular convenience without detriment to the monetary systems of the respective Governments. A larger use for subsidiary coinage might readily be found in our own country as well as abroad.—Philadelphia Record, Dem.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is prepared by experienced pharmacists who know precisely the nature and quality of all ingredients used.

SPIRITS TURPENTINE.

— Rockingham Rocket: The cotton crop is almost entirely harvested, and about half has been sold, and yet there has been little of general debt paying.

— Carthage Blade: Just as we go to press we learn of Mr. Marley's death this (Thursday) morning. Mr. Marley was one of our oldest citizens and has been a well known and respected resident of Carthage for many years.

— Sanford Express: The Sanford Clothing and Manufacturing Company will soon have their main building completed. It is 40x100 feet. Other buildings will also be erected. They expect to begin work by the first of the coming year.

— Salisbury World: Three cattle men from Buncombe and Jackson counties were in the city last night on their way to Richmond with six car loads of cattle. There is an active movement in the cattle business now from the Western part of the State.

— Raleigh Press Visitor: The Mormons of the State will hold a conference, near Rodford's Cross Road's in this county, at an early date. There are 44 elders in the State and they will all be present, in addition to the President of the Mormon Southern States Mission.

— Hillsboro Observer: Mr. Jos. P. Kenion sold his farm, five miles west of town, the other day to a Northern syndicate for $1,500. The farm contains about 80 acres, and the syndicate that purchased it will go to work soon to get out the gold that rumor says the land contains.

— Scotland Neck Commonwealth: At Medoc last Sunday a colored woman, the wife of Charles Johnson, fell into the fire and was so badly burned from her head to her waist that it was thought she could not possibly live. She was subject to fits, and being in a room alone she fell into the fire and was unable to get out.

— Raleigh Times: Mr. David Pugh, an old veteran, died Saturday morning at the Soldiers' Home. He has been an invalid for years. He was a native of Wake county. He served in the late war, and was a member of Company E, 47th N. C. Regiment. —— The Governor today offered a reward of $50 for the apprehension and delivery of Albert Colleton to sheriff of Henderson county. Colleton assaulted a little girl who lives near Fletchers, Henderson county, some time ago. He is a black man, twenty years old, five feet six inches high, and wiegbs about one hundred and ten pounds.

— Smithfield Herald: Fanny, the well known mare owned by Dr. G. J. Robinson, was killed one day last week by her owner. This animal was over 31 years of age and was probably one of the most widely known horses in the State. —— The stock law is becoming a general thing in certain sections of the county. Some time ago Selma adopted it and since then the farmers of the surrounding country have joined it until now the territory embraces a very large area, extending from Pineville to a point several miles south of Smithfield. But a few years ago the people of Johnston were very averse to the stock law or no-fence idea and aspirants for office were careful not to champion its cause. Each land owner has the privilege of adopting it and they are availing themselves of the opportunity.

The Frugal Farmer.

At a dinner given in his honor in Philadelphia Colonel A. K. McClure, the editor of the Philadelphia Times, told the following story relating to his first newspaper venture, started some 50 years ago: "I well remember the case of a frugal farmer of the Dunker persuasion who was sufficiently public spirited to subscribe for The Sentinel for six months to get the paper started, but at the end of that period he had calculated the heavy expenses of gathering the ripening harvest and decided to stop his paper for awhile. I need not say that he was enthusiastically confronted with many reasons why a man of his intelligence and influence should not be without the county newspaper, but he yielded only to the extent of further considering the matter with his wife. He returned in a few days and spread sunshine around the editorial chair by saying that his wife had decided to continue for another six months, as the paper would be very handy in the fall for tying up her apple butter crocks."

Chronic Dyspepsia Cured.

AFTER suffering for nearly thirty years from dyspepsia, Mrs. H. E. Dugdale, wife of a prominent business man of Warsaw, N. Y., writes: "For 28 years, I was a constant sufferer from dyspepsia, and a slight diet of the lightest food produced severe pain, and the formation of gas was powerful enough nearly to suffocate me. I was persuaded by my physician to try Dr. Miles' Nervine, and after using the contents of the first bottle I was able to eat what I liked, with no evil effects whatever. PREPARED FOR THE WORST.

The Hotel Didn't Burn, but If It Had He Would Have Been Fixed.

"Do you believe that we are sometimes forewarned of great dangers?" asked the commercial traveler. "Did you ever have—what you call it?—premonitions? Well, I was premonished the other night. I had to put up at a junction hotel, and they sent me clear up to the top of the building into one of those rooms with a slanted ceiling. You know the kind. You pay for the room, and the roof occupies it.

"There was one window. I looked out of the window, and it seemed to be at least 60 feet down to the ground. It was a wooden building, and an old one, understand? While I was looking out of the window a freight train went by, and the engine threw out a million sparks.

"'Well,' I says to myself, 'I can see my finish right now. There'll be 40 trains going by on these two roads tonight, and it's a four to one shot that this hotel is going to catch fire.' I looked out again. There wasn't any fire escape, and they didn't have any rope in the room. You see, in a good many places like that they have a big coil of rope in one corner and a sign that says, 'In case of fire take hold of the rope and jump.' A man reads that sign and then he can't sleep all night.

"Well, I looked out of the window again, and a switch engine pulled past and shot out a lot of live cinders as big as your fist. That settled it. I went over to the bed and found it had two sheets. I took out my pencil and figured that I could tear each sheet into four strips, and, allowing for the knots, each sheet would make about 24 feet of fire escape, although, of course, there would be some waste where I would have to tie it to the bed. I figured that I could push the bed over to the window, fasten one end of my rope to the headboard and play out about 45 feet. I had it all fixed—some water all ready in the bowl, so as to dampen the knots and pull them hard. Of course I still had some distance to fall after I got to the end of my rope, but that was all right. You know, as soon as I had my rope fixed I was going to drop the mattress, so as to have something to fall on.

"I took my cardcase, watch, money and keys and tied them in a handkerchief, which I very carefully placed on the window sill, so that it would not be overlooked in the hurry of getting away. There didn't seem to be anything else that I could do until the alarm was given, so I turned in and fell asleep right away. I wasn't worrying, because I was ready, no matter what happened. I had been asleep about three minutes, it seemed to me, when somebody pounded at my door and told me to get up; that it was 7 o'clock. I got up and dressed, and you can imagine how badly I was disappointed. Oh, I was sore! But, say, suppose the hotel had caught fire. Wouldn't that have been a star story?"—Chicago Record.

SERPENT POISON.

The Venom of the Cobra Is Deadly Almost Beyond Belief.

It was in the autumn of 1891 that Calmette, while acting as director of the Bacteriological institute of Saigon, Cochin China, first commenced his experiments on the neutralization of serpent venom in the animal system. He had exceptional opportunities in the matter of serpent venom wherewith to carry out his investigations, inasmuch as a band of cobras had recently attacked a village in the vicinity of Bac-Lieu, and by order of the governor of the district no fewer than 90 specimens of the terrible Naja tripudians, or cobra de capello, were forwarded in a barrel to the institute.

Forty of these reptiles arrived alive, and several were at once sacrificed to secure their venom glands. Each gland, resembling both in size and shape a shelled almond, contains about 80 drops of venom, and in this transparent limpid liquid is embodied a toxine of extraordinary strength. As is well known, this cobra is the most dreaded of all serpents, and it is widely distributed over India, Burma, Sumatra, Java, Malacca and Cochin China. Until Calmette, however, set to work to systematically study the nature of this reptile's venom, but little precise or reliable information had been obtained as to its character. It was, of course, necessary in the first instance to ascertain, within as narrow a limit as possible, the exact degree of toxic power inherent in the venom, and to determine, if possible, the precise dose lethal in respect of each variety of animal experimented upon.

A correct calculation of the quantity of venom required in every case was, however, found to be quite impossible, for so virulent is the poison that a single drop of an emulsion produced by pounding up 8 glands in 800 grams of distilled water is sufficient, when introduced into the vein of a rabbit's ear, to kill it in five minutes. All the mammals to which Calmette administered this cobra venom, such as monkeys, dogs, rabbits, guinea pigs, rats, succumbed more or less quickly, according to the size of the dose.—Longman's Magazine.

The Peacock at Home.

The real home of the peacock or peafowl is in India. There they were and are hunted, and their flesh is used for food. As the birds live in the same region as the tiger, peacock hunting is a very dangerous sport. The long train of the peacock is not its tail, as many suppose, but is composed of feathers which grow out just above the tail and are called the tail coverts. Peacocks have been known for many hundred years. They are mentioned in the Bible. Job mentions them, and they are mentioned, too, in I Kings x. Hundreds of years ago in Rome many thousand peacocks were killed for the great feasts which the emperors made. The brains of the peacock were considered a great treat, and many had to be killed for a single feast.—St. Nicholas.

WIDOWS FOR SALE.

Commercial Negotiations In the Middle Ages Wherein Women Figured.

"Of all the matrimonial trafficking, in the age of chivalry, the ways of widows," says a writer in The Gentleman's Magazine, "are at once the boldest and most comprehensive. As a rule their methods seldom resort to blandishments. It is remarkable when tenderness is an item in their bargain. Speed was their maxim. It was one that King John honored, for he profited by it. Yet one of the rarest exceptions in the way of delicacy to these commercial negotiations has evidently been prompted by a widow who had quite an exceptional lover. In 1206 William de Landa, either one of the most famous of the Crusaders or his son, offers 50 marks and a palfrey for having to wife Joan, who was the wife of Thomas de Aresey, 'if he may be pleasing to the said Joan.' The sheriff is instructed to ascertain the widow's wishes, 'and, if the said Joan shall be pleased to have him for a husband, then the sheriff shall cause William to have seizin of Joan and her land,' both of which he obtained in the name of gentle love and the faith of a true soldier. It is fitting that the name of one of the men who led the assault of Acre should be preserved in such a record as the above. He was in truth a very perfect knight.

"One of the most rampageous of the northern English borderers manifested the like delicacy. Young Walter de Umfraville, son of Gilbert, had left a widow, Emma, presumably in the very blush of her charms. Peter De Vaux had fallen at her feet, but he declined to obtain her in border fashion, and this fact is the earnest pledge of the chivalry of his love. If he would not steal her, he was bound to buy her, and coin with the De Vaux was always a scarcity. So he offered the king 5 palfreys for her 'if she wished it,' and with what would read as a graceful acknowledgment of the borderer's pure chivalry John absolutely drops the commercial from his reply and simply orders Robert Fitz Roger, the sheriff, 'to permit it to be done.'"

COTTON MARKETS.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, November 8.—The cotton market opened at a loss of one to four points, and before the day was out showed an additional loss of five to seven points. January contracts sold down to 5 62, this being the lowest figure in over two years and within a third of a cent of the lowest price in the history of the cotton statistics. The weakness of the market was directly the result of predictions of overwhelming receipts at interior points as well as of cotton at the ports to-morrow. In addition to this pressure, the English market closed at a net loss of one and a half to two points, while reports from manufacturing circles in New England were for selling cotton and liquidation became very general,

Coke and Cole.

Senator Coke of Texas was once pitted in some kind of race against a man named Cole, who was an eloquent speaker and was getting rather the better of him. The Coke party gave a big barbecue, but their best speaker could not be on hand. The committee discovered that no talent was available except a rough and tumble fellow who had been a coal miner in West Virginia. He consented, when called on, and the committee was in fear and trembling, wondering what he would do. But they didn't fear and tremble long. "Feller citizens," said the speaker, "I am here today to talk to you about Coke and Cole. You know me, and you know I know what I'm talking about, and I want to ask you if you know the difference between Coke and Cole. But it ain't necessary; every man of you knows that the difference between them is the gas that is in the Coke."—San Francisco Argonaut.

Dark are the mounds where the snow blast is sweeping,
Wild is the cry of the wind on its flight,
Cold is the drift that the north wind is heaping
Over the nursling alone in the night!

Alone in the night and the dark that went creeping
Out of her arms but a daybreak ago!
Anguished with sorrow, her watch she is keeping,
Far would she follow through storm and through snow.

Nay, tender mother, have done with your weeping,
Not in the night and the dark has he part.
His all of bright heaven save when he is sleeping

LAFITTE THE PIRATE.

New Version of the Story Told by Galveston Oystermen.

Galveston island, Texas, is very proud of Lafitte, the pirate. Indeed, his fame, like that of Captain Kidd, grows greater with every year. Out on the island, a few miles from the city, is a grove known as Lafitte's grove. A number of wind bent trees encircle a dancing pavilion and are surrounded with a choice collection of oyster shells and tin cans. The elderly woman of the party, her old fashioned curls bobbing hysterically, hurried to a native who was placidly wrestling with a half dozen bushels of oysters.

"Say, mister, who was this Lafitte that they talk about?" she began, notebook in hand.

"Well, lady, he was a powerful big man. I don't know all the rights of the matter, but somehow he had the habit of jerkin folks' money away from 'em, and once in a while he brought a lot of it here to the island and buried it."

"Is there any buried here in the grove?"

"No, lady. This grove was just a gathering place for 'em—Lafitte and his crew. They used to come here o' nights an bring their booty which they had gathered from ships pirated an robbed. They divided it up, an each man got his share, an then they had a kind o' war dance around any victims they had brought in before killin 'em."

"How horrible!"

"Yes, it was terrible, lady, but that was not a circumstance to the things th' chief pirate used to do. One time when there was a big party in one of the rich houses on the island he an his crew suddenly appeared in the ballroom. They drove everybody outdoors except the women an made them dance with 'em. Then they went to the dinin room an had a big feast, endin with carrying off all the silver in the house."

"That is very interesting," making more notes.

"Yes, 'm," with a placid face. "But there's worse yet to come. Once a man refused to give up his pocketbook to Lafitte, an th' pirate took him an tied him by the waist to the stern of the pirate boat an dragged him for a mile through the sea. By that time he was ready to give up."

"Did the pirate get the pocketbook?"

"Yes, 'm, the man was dead. But the end come at last, ma'am. One day the other pirates did not like the way Lafitte did things, an they rebelled on him. They murdered him in his bunk one night when he was asleep."

"What a terrible fate!" making more notes.

"Yes'm, an they stuck his head on a pole, where they kept it for ten days an nights. Then they brought it here an buried it in this grove, an he haunts this part of the island every dark night, yelling an screeching awful."

The listener shuddered and made some more notes, but the oysterman went placidly on with his work, unconscious apparently of the effect his marvelous interpretation of history had caused. If Lafitte had not already haunted the grove, he surely ought to have done so after so strange a perversion of his biography.—New York Post.

Sir Walter Scott's First Brief.

Sir Walter Scott had his share of curious experiences shortly after being called to the bar. His first appearance as counsel in a criminal court was at Jedburg assizes in 1798, when he successfully defended a veteran poacher. "You're a lucky scoundrel," Scott whispered to his client when the verdict was given.

"I'm just of your mind," returned the latter, "and I'll send you a maukin"—namely, a hare—"the morn, man." Lockhart, who narrates the incident, omits to add whether the "maukin" duly reached Scott, but no doubt it did.

On another occasion Scott was less successful in his defense of a housebreaker, but the culprit, grateful for his counsel's exertions, gave him, in lieu of the orthodox fee, which he was unable to pay, this piece of advice, to the value of which he (the housebreaker) could professionally attest: First, never to have a large watchdog out of doors, but to keep a little yelping terrier within, and, secondly, to put no trust in nice, clever, gimcrack locks, but to pin his faith to a huge old heavy one with a rusty key. Scott long remembered this incident, and 30 years later, at a judges' dinner at Jedburg, he recalled it in this impromptu rhyme:

Yelping terrier, rusty key,
Was Walter Scott's best Jeddart fee.

BORN UNLUCKY.

What He Has Suffered and What He Thinks He Has to Fear.

"Were you in the war?" inquired the young hero worshiper of a secret society gun in this city as the scarred and gray haired veteran of a long life painfully hobbled across the floor of the anteroom.

"No," he sighed, "but I couldn't have been more injured if I had been," said he, rubbing one of his legs tenderly as he spoke.

"What was the trouble?" persisted the young man sympathizingly.

"Trouble! It's been nothing but trouble since I came on earth," sadly replied the afflicted one. "I was born unlucky. I am a living picture of bad luck, and the more I think of my misfortunes the more forcibly I am reminded of that passage in the good book which says that the sins of the father shall be visited upon the children to the third and four generation. My father was a good man, and so was his father, but I am convinced that I must have had a pirate for one of my ancestors and that I am visited with all his sins."

"Is it possible?" commented the young man.

"Yes, my bad luck began when I was born," for my mother died then. When I was but 2 weeks old, the house took fire and I was nearly suffocated and cremated. Before I was 3 years old a servant dropped me to the sidewalk, and I had brain fever as a result; I fell down stairs and broke my collar bone, and I got lost and was found by a policeman half perished in an ash heap." The victim of misfortune sighed deeply over these incidents in his career and rubbed his paralyzed hand. Continuing, he said:

"I was but 4 years old when a playmate cut off the ends of three of my fingers with an ax, and two years later I had measles, whooping cough, chicken pox and scarlet fever. When I was 8, I fell from a cherry tree and broke a leg, and as soon as that got well I was knocked down and trampled over by a runaway horse. That kept me in bed a long time, and my nose has been crooked ever since.

"When I was 10 years old, I was the only boy in school who got licked and kicked by bigger boys every day, and a year later I was the only one in the town who had cholera. When I was 15, I went to a circus, and the tent blew down. I was the only person who was stepped upon or hurt, and the entire audience walked over me. It was three months before I recovered from that affair, and six months later I fell through the ice while skating and was pulled out half drowned. A year later, while rabbit shooting, a friend shot me in the hip, and I have never fully recovered from it. The next summer lightning struck a tree I was standing beneath, and I was picked up for dead. When I was 25, I again fell through the ice, and the wetting gave me pneumonia and left my lungs weak. Soon after I got well I caught cold, which nearly resulted in consumption. The following year rheumatism attacked me, and at times I cannot use my left arm and leg, and my last misfortune was to receive a paralytic stroke, which has rendered my right side from the top of my head to my foot absolutely useless, as you have observed when I hobble about.

"I suppose," he said, with a world of pathos in his sad voice, "that some day I'll sit on a barrel of dynamite which will explode, and then my troubles will be ended."—Washington Post.

ORIENTAL EYES.

Their Much Lauded Beauty Due to False Modes of Living.

An esteemed correspondent of The Woman's Arena writes, "May not the much lauded largeness and luster of the oriental eye be due to false modes of living and to a low grade of civilization?"

In the first place these charms are never found among the working classes or among the tillers of the soil. They belong to the harem and to the harem civilization.

I have examined the women's quarters in Constantinople and Cairo, in Aden and Bombay, in Calcutta and Jahore, and even in Hongkong and Canton, and in nearly every instance the women's rooms were small and dark. Where there were windows these were mere slits in the wall, which did not allow any direct light to enter.

The doorway was small and the door was solid and nearly always closed. The lamp was usually a taper and sometimes a candle. The room or rooms looked out upon a long hall or corridor, which was also dark and gloomy, and this in turn upon an arched and roofed veranda.

In nearly all of these places a woman's daily life was conducted in shadow and shade, and after sundown she had less light than fell to the lot of the pilgrim fathers 250 years ago.

Under these conditions the human eye develops like that of the cat and dog. It becomes larger and seemingly more lustrous in order to allow the owner to move about in safety and comfort. Transfer this unfortunate woman to the open street, the field or the deck of a steamer, and her eyes are in a torture from the sunlight. Her forehead is contracted by a terrible frown, her eyelids are screwed together and her eyes seem to be just the opposite of what they are described in poetry and romance.

It may be I am all wrong, but of all poetic humbugs, I think that the gazellelike orb of the orient is the biggest.

India Dialects.

India has hundreds of dialects, which may all be classed under three great heads, the Sanscrit, Pracrit and Magadhi. The Sanscrit is the fundamental language and that of the Vedas; the Pracrit, the vernacular language in many dialects, and the Magadhi or Misra is that of Ceylon and the islands.

FIRST WHITE HOUSE BATH.

Van Buren Was Criticised For Introducing the Tub Into the Mansion.

In an article on "The Domestic Side of the White House," in The Ladies' Home Journal, ex-President Harrison gives this interesting view of the home portion of the executive mansion: "Properly speaking," he says, "there are five bedrooms in the executive mansion, though by the use of two dressing rooms and of the end of a short hall that formerly opened to a large north window, but has now been closed up to make a small bedroom, the number may be increased to eight. There are no suitable servants' quarters. Those provided are in the basement, and only those opening to the south are habitable. The north rooms open upon a damp brick arena and are unhealthy. One of the basement rooms, having a southern exposure, is fitted up as a billiard room, but very plainly.

"It is said that provision for a library for the White House was first made during Mr. Fillmore's term. Neat cases are arranged about the room, and most of them are filled with books—old editions of historical and classical works. There is no catalogue, and the library has not been kept up.

"President Adams introduced billiards into the White House, purchasing the first table, balls and cues at a cost of $61, paying for them out of his own pocket. President Van Buren was charged by a political adversary and scathing critic as being the first of our presidents to discover that the pleasures of the warm or tepid bath are the proper accompaniments of a palace life. For it appears that our former presidents were content with the application, when necessary, of the simple shower bath. Mr. Van Buren's critic then refers with high approval to the salutary side of Mr. Adams' heroic habit of bathing in the Potomac 'between daybreak and sunrise.'"

TO LITTLETON, N. C.

Panacea Springs. The analysis of the Panacea Water proves it to be a sure cure for dyspepsia, chronic diarrhœa, kidney and liver troubles, eczema and scrofula, and it is particularly efficacious in restoring weak men, delicate females and sickly children to health.

TO LINCOLNTON, N. C.

Mineral Springs, Lithia Arsenic and Alum. The waters of the famous Lincoln Lithia Springs, are celebrated throughout the United States for their healing qualities in diseases of the kidney and bladder; also for gout, rheumatism, and the varied forms of dyspepsia.

TO SHELBY, N. C.

The famous Sulphur Springs at Cleveland and Patterson, two and four miles respectively from town. The Cleveland Springs are four in number, viz: White Sulphur, Red Sulphur, Chalybeate and Pure Freestone. For half a century or more these springs have been known to possess rare medicinal virtue, but it is only during the last few years that an effort has been made to bring them before the public and place them where they now stand, in the front rank of well earned popularity.

TO HARRIS LITHIA SPRINGS, S. C.

The Lithia Water at these Springs is noted for its curative qualities for torpid liver, skin eruption, scrofulous diseases, kidney and bladder troubles of every kind, rheumatism and gout. The atmosphere all through the summer is delightful, and the most fastidious can hardly fail to be satisfied with the even balmy climate. Large pools have been provided for bathing, together with dancing pavilion, tennis court, bowling alleys, croquet grounds, etc., for the amusement of the pleasure-seeker and invalid.

INTER-STATE COMMERCE.

Supreme Court Decision Concerning the Long and Short Haul Clause.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—The Supreme Court to-day confirmed the decision of the lower court in the case of the Inter-State Commerce Commission against the Alabama Midland and the Georgia Central Company and others. The case arose out of the charges of citizens of Troy, Ala., that the companies were disregarding the long and short haul clause of the Inter-State commerce law. The point at issue was whether, when there was competition between railroad and water transportation, the roads must first file lower rates with the Inter-State Commerce Commission and it was decided in the negative by the court.

The opinion of the court was handed down by Justice Shiras. The action was begun before the Inter-State Commerce Commission in 1892, upon a petition from the Board of Trade of Troy, Ala., alleging a discrimination by the roads against that town in the interests of Montgomery and other places. The roads defended their rates as necessary to meet water transportation, but the Commission decided against them, and also held that preference in rates should not be granted except upon authority first secured from the Commission.

The court to-day overruled the Commission on both points, holding on the first that "competition is one of the most obvious and effective circumstances that make the conditions under which a long and short haul is performed substantially dissimilar."

Justice Shiras stated, however, that the decision was not intended to relieve common carriers from the restraints of the third and fourth sections of the law, but its purport was that these sections are "not so stringent and imperative as to exclude in all cases the matter of competition in determining the questions of undue and unreasonable preference."

Upon the other point, as to whether railroad companies can be relieved from the operations of the long and short haul clause of the Inter State Commerce act without first involving the consent of the Commission, Justice Shiras said:

"We are unable to suppose that Congress intended to forbid common carriers in cases where the circumstances and conditions are substantially dissimilar from making different rates until and unless the commission shall authorize them to do so."

This opinion was in line with the decision of the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth circuit, which was therefore affirmed.

Justice Harlan dissented from the opinion, remarking that it went far towards defeating the inter-State commerce law, adding, "it not only minimizes the power of the Inter-State Commerce Commission far below the intention of Congress with reference to it, but it puts into the hands of railroad companies the power to so arrange the transportation business of the country as to destroy the business of intermediate points."

DURANT MUST HANG.

U. S. Courts Refuse a Writ of Habeas Corpus to the Murderer of Blanche Lamont.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—The United States Supreme Court to-day affirmed the decision of the Circuit Court for the California circuit refusing a writ of habeas corpus to William Henry Theodore Durant, under sentence of death for the murder of Miss Blanche Lamont in San Francisco, in April, 1895. The case has attracted attention throughout the whole of the United States and to-day's decision permits the law to take its course with the condemned man. Chief Justice Fuller announced the Court's conclusion but made no remarks in doing so save to cite a few authorities on which the Court based its decision.

The decision of the Supreme Court has paved the way for the execution of five other murderers who have been sentenced to death but whose executions have been deferred pending the decision in the Durant case. Among them are train wrecker Worden, Harvey Alexander of San Jose, and Edarks of San Diego who butchered an aged couple.

Durant's parents were notified this morning of the court's decision and were deeply affected, Mrs. Durant wept but said her son was innocent and that she did not give up hope that he would be vindicated and his innocence proved. District Attorney Barnes said that the only thing the attorneys for Durant could do now was to appeal from the order of the Supreme Court, but that he thought they would not try this as they were sure to fail.

DRY GOODS MARKET.

Jobbers Report Very Light Business—Retailers Affected by Unseasonable Weather.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, November 8.—There is a continued weakness in the dry goods market, the reductions announced Saturday by the agents for American prints being decidedly in line with the present situation. It is thought that other reductions in correlative lines will follow in the near future. The business passing in all lines of cotton goods is very slim including print cloths. Jobbers, both locally and in the country, report a very light business, and retailers are still suffering from delayed winter weather in nearly all seasonable lines. Woollens and worsted goods are without change, and there is still a lack of inclination to go ahead with business for next year until the present condition of the wool market changes to a tone less vacillating in its character.

He Is In Poor Health and Constantly in Need of Medical Attendance—His Reception at the Palace a Chilly Affair.

By Cable to the Morning Star.

HAVANA, November 8, VIA KEY WEST, FLA., November 8.—The Annexationists have received through the columns of a newspaper of this city a hint that it will be well to abandon their meetings. The article in question conveyed the intimation that the club was to be proceeded against as a gambling institution, under which pretext it would be possible to cause its members a great deal of trouble, without going to the length of accusing them of conspiracy. The secret meetings have, therefore, been discontinued.

General Blanco's formal reception at the palace a week ago was a very chilly affair. Outside of the officials and representatives of commercial bodies who attended, there were only about thirty people present.

General Blanco is said to be in poor health, to be constantly in need of medical attendance, and therefore not likely to be able to endure the hardships of an energetic campaign against the insurgents. Personally, Marshal Blanco is well liked by the members of all parties, including the Conservatives, who, owing to their wealth, generally succeed in swaying the masses of the people in Cuba. But the Autonomists and the Conservatives are far from being hand-in-glove, and no matter which the Captain General favors, he is pretty sure to have the hostility of the other.

Marshal Blanco has issued the following edict, officially, describing as "expressing the magnanimous sentiments of the Queen-Regent and the firm determination of the national government":

"I pardon in full all those who have been prosecuted for the crime of rebellion. Rebels prosecuted for common crimes, independent of rebellion, such as spoliation and the like, will be pardoned as rebels, but judged for other offences committed by them. Those suffering sentences imposed prior to the date of this edict will have their sentences commuted to a certain extent, and perhaps in some cases in full. Persons pardoned should appear before the civil and military authorities at their respective places of residence, which they will designate and which will be communicated to me. Should they designate places of residence outside the principal towns, they will be advised of the necessity of residing within the military zone of cultivation. The military authorities will be careful not to invade the jurisdiction of the civil authorities. Therefore, those pardoned cannot change their residences without obtaining the permission of both civil and military authorities."

At the solicitation of Senora Emila Quesadá, widow of Senor Artega Quesada, Captain General Blanco has pardoned her son, Julio Quesada, a nephew of Senor Gunzalo Quesada, of the Cuba Junta at New York. The young man was under sentence of death.

Seven insurgents were tried by court-martial here to-day and fifty-three insurgents were sent to the penal settlement on the Isle of Pines.

GENERAL FITZHUGH LEE

Will Sail To-morrow for His Post of Duty as Consul General at Havana.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, November 8.—General Fitzhugh Lee, Consul General at Havana, will sail for his post of duty on Wednesday. Gen. Lee was reticent to-day in speaking of Cuban affairs, but he referred with satisfaction to his interview with President McKinley last Friday.

"It was of course gratifying to me," said General Lee, "to have the President tell me that my course as Consul General met with his approval. He told me that he had received letters from representative men of all sections who expressed their satisfaction at my retention in office. Of course I cannot say what my instructions are except that I am to look out for the rights of American citizens. As to President McKinley's wishes all that I can say is that he desires peace."

Asked as to the effect of Gen. Blanco's appointment to succeed Gen. Weyler, Gen. Lee said: "Of course when a commander is replaced by another in the field it follows that this new commander is to use a new policy. The new General would understand that, even though he received no special instructions whatever. What Gen. Blanco's policy will be, however, I cannot say."

Gen. Lee expects to go up to West Point to-morrow to say good-bye to his son, who is a cadet there.

OHIO SENATORSHIP.

Democrats Propose to Vote for Gov. Bushnell to Defeat Hanna

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

COLUMBUS, November 8.—A local Democratic newspaper prints an interview with C. V. Harris, Secretary of the Democratic State Central Committee, in which that gentleman is quoted as saying that at a conference of the Democratic leaders off the State, it was decided to pledge the votes of as many Democratic members of the General Assembly as could be controlled to Governor Bushnell for United States Senator, on condition that the Governor could command enough Republican votes to make his election possible. Mr. Harris is editor of the Athens Journal. He is quoted as saying: "We have decided to throw the Democratic vote in the next General Assembly to Governor Bushnell, on condition that he can get votes enough from the Republican side of the House to elect him. So many of the Republican members want to down Hanna that we think there will be no difficulty in this. The deal is all arranged."

COTTON MARKET ABROAD.

Report of Treasurer Miller of the New York Cotton Exchange.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, November 8.—Walter T. Miller, the treasurer of the New York Cotton Exchange, who returned from Europe a few days ago, made the following statement to-day concerning the cotton market abroad:

"I found the general situation with regard to trade and commerce favorable and by no means unsatisfactory, as I understood and has been the impression in America for the past month or two. Certainly in England and on the Continent just the contrary was the case. As to the prices of manufactured goods, of course buyers decline to buy large stocks so long as the South persists in offering cotton down. When enough of the cotton is marketed to relieve the producer and he feels able to hold some cotton, buyers of manufactured goods and traders in cotton will probably be anxious to invest in both."

THE YELLOW FEVER.

SITUATION AT NEW ORLEANS CONTINUES FAVORABLE.

People Elated Over the Gratifying Turn of Affair.—Improvement at Memphis and Mississippi Points—The Days' Record of New Cases and Deaths.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

MONTGOMERY, ALA., Nov. 8.—One new case of fever and no deaths.

Flomation reports three cases; seventy-seven in all and no deaths to date, from yellow fever.

MOBILE, ALA., Nov. 8.—The new cases of yellow fever were but four. There were no deaths.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 8.—The yellow fever situation continues favorable. There has been no marked change since yesterday and Yellow Jack has lost his terrors for the people, who are greatly elated over the gratifying turn of affairs. Good news has been received from all points, and it is predicted that trade will have assumed its normal condition by the middle of the month, though it has been dealt a terrible blow by the dreadful plague. The Board of Health officials are of the opinion that the situation will gradually improve and indications point that way. To day's record was as follows: New cases, 18; deaths, 5

MEMPHIS, November 8.—There was not a single new case or death from yellow fever in Memphis to-day. In addition to this the Board of Health reports that there is not even a suspicious case known to them and that those already sick are doing well without exception.

JACKSON, MISS., November 8.—The Board of Health to-night issued an order permitting all passengers from non-infected points in the State of Alabama to come from non-infected points in Mississippi with proper health certificates. All baggage, freight, express, mail and newspapers from non-infected points in the State of Alabama will be allowed to come into the State of Mississippi.

UNITED STATES AND CANADA.

Important Questions That Will be Considered at the Meeting of Officials of the Two Governments in Washington.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, November 8.—The authorities here have been advised that the arrival to morrow of Sir Wilfred Laurier, Premier of Canada; Sir Louis Davies, Minister of Marine in the Laurier cabinet, and other officials of the Dominion, is to have an important bearing, not only on the Behring sea settlement, but on all the pending questions which have been sources of international complication between the United States and Canada, namely, the passage of alien labor to and from Canada, the North Atlantic fisheries question, the presence of many Americans in the Klondike territory belonging to Canada and in the mining regions of British Columbia, the fisheries troubles along the Great Lake, the bonding privilege granted Canadian railroads, the controversy over rights in the Frazer river, British Columbia and in Puget Sound, and also the question of reciprocity arrangement between the United States and Canada. There is direct and definite information that Sir Wilfred comes prepared to take up all these questions, and, if possible, include them in one general settlement whereby the constant friction they have engendered may be overcome.

THREE LIVES LOST.

Frightful Results of a Fire at Hot Springs Arkansas.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

HOT SPRINGS, ARK., November 8.—A fire with frightful results occurred here this morning at 1 o'clock. Frank Hauffman, Charlie Johnson and Clara Erhart were burned to death. The fire occurred in A. Erhart's bakery on Central avenue. The building was a three-story brick and Mr. Erhart's family occupied the third floor as a residence. Several of the employes of the bakery, including Frank Kauffman and Charlie Johnson, slept on the second floor. The fire originated in the room in which the ovens are located, in the rear of the building, and spread rapidly to the second and third floors, where the sleeping occupants were almost suffocated with smoke before they made an effort to save themselves. Mr. Erhart succeeded by heroic efforts in getting his family out through the window on the roofs of the adjoining buildings and dropping them on the awnings below. His eleven-year-old daughter, Clara, after being rescued ran back into the building to save her mother and was burned to death. The bodies of Kaufman and Johnson were found in their beds this morning frightfully burned. They were intoxicated when they retired and suffocated before aroused.

GEN. JULIO SANGUILLY.

Placed in an Embarrassing Position by an Order Commanding Him to Report for Duty With the Insurgents.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

PHILADELPHIA, November 8.—The Press will say to-morrow that General Julio Sanguilly, the Cuban patriot, has received an order from General Gomez to report for duty in the insurgent ranks. The order places him in a most embarrassing position. Sanguilly had become an American citizen, and when arrested in Havana two years ago, was only released from Moro Castle on pledging his word not to again take up arms against Spain. Sanguilly gave this pledge after much hesitation. Not long afterwards General Gomez ordered him to report for duty, but Secretary Sherman, it is said, informed Sanguilly that if he did so he would forfeit his American citizenship.

The last note from Gomez is to the effect that if Sanguilly, who is a major general by commission from Gomez, does not report by December 10th, he will be reduced to the ranks and discharged without honor.

A FORGER ESCAPED.

Sawed His Way Out of the Jail at Memphis, Tennessee.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star

MEMPHIS, November 8.—J. A. Thomas, the forger, made his second escape from the jail here early this morning by sawing the bars of his cell and afterwards sawing the bars of the window in the rear of the jail, after which the escape was made easy. Thomas had made himself famous by his previous escapes from jail here and at Chicago and his subsequent marriage with Miss Fannie Rutherford, of Minneapolis, at St. Louis. Three other prisoners, charged with minor offences, also escaped after Thomas had made the way clear.

FOOT BALL IN GEORGIA.

Bill Prohibiting Games Passed the House of Representatives.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

ATLANTA, GA., November 8.—Representative Cole's foot ball bill, prohibiting match or prize games of foot ball or games of foot ball where admission fees are charged, came up in the House to-day with a favorable report from the General Judiciary Committee, with an amendment striking out games of like character. This was adopted and the bill passed without discussion by a vote of 91 to 8.

GENERAL WEYLER'S BACKERS

Preparing to Give Him a Reception on His Arrival in Madrid, to Neutralize the Attitude of the Sagasta Cabinet.

By Cable to the Morning Star.

MADRID, November 8.—Lieutenant General Weyler's political backers, supported by his influential following in the army, are fomenting an agitation on his behalf against the Government policy and are preparing to give him a reception on his arrival, which will, if they can bring it about, neutralize the critical attitude of the Sagasta cabinet. Senor Romeo Robeldo, who is leading the agitation, addressed a meeting of the Conservatives to-day at which several Senators and Deputies were present, and made a violent attack on the governing committee of the Conservative party, whom he charged with being responsible for the dissolution of the party. He eulogized Lieut. Gen. Weyler as a military commander and a civil administrator, and urged that "war is the only true policy in Cuba."

Senor Robeldo will go to Corunna to meet Lieut. Gen. Weyler on the arrival of the Montesserral. Meanwhile he is organizing a series of public meetings to protest against the recall of Weyler, the first of which will be held to-morrow, and he proposes a reorganization of the Conservative party upon the basis of the programme of the late Senor Canovas as to Cuba and the Philippines.

MUNITIONS OF WAR.

Nine Car Loads Passed Through Jacksonville from Key West.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

JACKSONVILLE, FLA., November 8.—A special to the Times-Union and Citizen from Tampa to-night says: Nine car loads of munitions of war passed through here for Key West to-night. It is reported that the New York Herald has chartered the steamer Tarpon, but it is believed that the boat has really been chartered to the filibusters.

WARM WHEELETS

Ex-U. S. Senator Nathan Fellows Dixon died at his home Westerly, L. I., after an illness of about three weeks.

The British steamer Inchdun, which arrived at Bremen yesterday, from Brunswick, Ga., lost part of her deck load, amounting to 135 bales of cotton.

Hon. Alexander Catrell Davidson died in Uniontown, Ala., from a stroke of paralysis. Colonel Davidson represented the fourth Alabama district in Congress two terms. He was in his seventy-first year.

EDMUND KEAN.

To See Him Act Was Like Reading Shakespeare by Lightning.

Before the third century after the birth of Shakespeare had reached its first quarter there was born in England to a stage carpenter and a strolling actress a child destined to grapple with the poet's highest thought and interpret it with a vividness that to this day stands unrivaled. Coleridge's terse comment, that to see him act was reading Shakespeare by lightning, reveals him with the fullness of a volume. Edmund Kean, along with most people early trained to an art, had little, if any, education of the schools. He was when a boy provided with instruction by some benevolent people whom his smartness and beauty attracted, but he rebelled against the tasks of study and went to sea. But life there was too rough for his fine nature. He returned to England, and at the age of 7 began the study of Shakespeare's characters with his uncle Moses. This he continued with an actress named Tidswell, who taught him besides, as well as she knew, the principles of her art.

At that early age he had the credit of originality so surprising as even then to challenge the supremacy of Philip Kemble. At 14 he played Hamlet. King George had him recite at Windsor castle, and it is said this incident led some gentlemen to send him to Eton, but there is no record of it. At 20 he was in a provincial troop, a member of which he married, and for six years thereafter, until his glorious night at Drury Lane, his life was one of hardship, struggle, obscurity, but, thanks to the faith in himself, not hopeless. His London debut was made at 28. He had fought for it hard and long and would then have missed it but for the falling reputation of the theater. London debuts in first roles are not easy for provincial actors, and none knows better how hard they are to get than Henry Irving. Kean seems to have been at his full splendor, and made a hit. After that his habits were altogether prejudicial to the refinement of taste or the acquisition of knowledge.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.
